'Pearl Harbor' Cast Reups Stennis Sailors

By JO1 David Nagle and JO2 Chris Halsey
Joint Information Bureau Pearl Harbor

ABOARD USS JOHN C STENNIS (CVN 74) Pearl Harbor, HI – In the final act of the movie "Pearl Harbor," Col. Jimmy Doolittle (Alec Baldwin) forecasted America's place in World War II. "We might have lost the battle, but we're gonna win this war. You know how I know? There's just nothing stronger than the heart of a volunteer."

Twenty-Two Sailors aboard USS JOHN C STENNIS (CVN 74) exemplified that tradition when they volunteered to "Stay Navy." "Pearl Harbor" cast members Ben Affleck, Josh Hartnett and Kate Beckinsale were on hand for the May 18 ceremony on the flight deck of the nuclear powered aircraft carrier.

Chief Yeoman (SW/AW) Frank Sartori, Chief Postal Clerk (SW) Roger Nevins, Chief Personnelman (SW/AW) Kevin Scadden, Aviation Storekeeper (AW) 1st Class John Hunnicutt, AK2(AW) Sarah Williams, Ship's Serviceman 2nd Class (SW/AW) Stephen Boyd, Operations Specialist 2nd Class (SW) Nicholas Pearce, Electrician's Mate 2nd Class (SW) Benjamin Aratea, Mess Management Specialist 3rd Class (SW) Kenneth Svihlik, Air Traffic Controller 3rd Class (AW) Melvin Jacobs, Aviation Ordnanceman 3rd Class (AW) Daniel Lipscomb, Fire Controlman 3rd Class Jovan Jackson, EM3 Duncan Gilmour, Journalist 3rd Class Nick Delacruz, ABH3 Robert Stutz, AO3(AW) Melvin Franklin, FC3 Richard Castleberry, Photographer's Mate 3rd Class (AW) Angela Gonzalez, Machinist's Mate 3rd Class Brandon Sellers, EM3 Timothy Kellett, and Information Systems Technician 3rd Class Christopher Brookman, reaffirmed their oaths of enlistment to an audience of shipmates, Disney production crewmembers and worldwide media outlets.

Capt. Richard Gallagher, commanding officer of the JOHN C STENNIS, officiated the ceremony on the ship's flight deck, overlooking the USS Arizona Memorial and the Battleship Missouri.

"We need to retain our best and brightest people," explained Gallagher. "We are happy to keep these fine men and women in our Navy as we venture further into the new millennium."

The Hollywood actors talked to the JOHN C STENNIS Sailors after performing the mass reenlistment, signing autographs and "swapping sea stories."

"It's a big deal," explained Affleck. "Some of these guys reenlisted for six years. I mean reenlisting for two years alone is a real substantial commitment."

Afterwards the Sailors ate a cake carved to resemble the Arizona Memorial and answered questions from media correspondents from around the world.

JOHN C STENNIS hosted the movie's world premiere May 21 at Naval Station Pearl Harbor. The event had a positive effect on the crew's morale. "The chance to be involved in something of this size, not to mention the opportunity to meet with the stars and spend 10 days in Hawaii made this whole experience worth it," said AK1 John Hunnicutt.

JO3 Nick Delacruz agreed. "The best part was knowing I played a part in this historic event and knowing that someday I can look back and say 'I was there.'"

In reflecting on the aspects of what the movie portrays and the people who survived the attack, and IT3 Christopher Brookman said, "It's important for the Navy to recognize the men and women who died for their country. They upheld the idea of freedom and the ideals of honor, courage and commitment."

Remembering those Sailors who sacrificed their lives

The USS Arizona is the final resting place for many of the ship's 1,177 crewmen who lost their lives on December 7, 1941. According to its architect, Alfred Preis, the design of the memorial, "wherein the structure sags in the center but stands strong and vigorous at the ends, expresses initial defeat and ultimate victory... The overall effect is one of serenity."

During manning of the rails ceremony the JCS crew honors the memory of all Sailors who sacrificed their lives during the attack on Pearl Harbor.
